Successful Garden Party of St. Paul's Church

(Contributed)

Our annual garden party was held on the Clergy House lawn on Wednesday, July 24th, the social and financial result more than surpassing our wildest expectations.

Visitors and friends from all parts attended at the prettily decorated lawn most charming appearance. It was a delightful to meet so many old friends, and to do so made their visit all the more memorable one.

Naturally the supper was all that was desired, and many kind and nice things were said about it. At least 300 persons must have sat down to supper. As usual the ladies worked like Trojans, and deserve the highest praise for their splendid organization and management. No wonder they feel so exceedingly proud of themselves, and kept smiling!

Of course the big event of the evening was the programme, which was in every way worthy of the occasion. Each item was cordially received, and the small children proved particularly interesting, completely captivating the hearts of the visitors. The Haliburton Band never played more pleasingly, and was both happy and generous in its choice of selections. It certainly presents great possibilities under such capable leadership. Needless to say, we are profoundly grateful to our kind friends from Toronto and other places, who did so much to strengthen and improve the quality of our programme, and helped make it such a great success. Their kindness will long be remembered.

The Fish Pond proved a great attraction, and some very remarkable catches were made. Unheard of specimens of fish were brought to the top of the pond, much to the joy and surprise of the excited and enthusiastic young anglers. Really, Minden is a most wonderful place to fish!

The ice cream stand did a roaring trade, and we tender our warmest thanks to the kind and faithful Anglican who managed it so well. But we regret to hear that he shed his life's blood in doing so.

Nearly all the fancy work was disposed of, and the ladies of the W.A. report a record sale. But who could resist their beautiful needlework!

Words could not express our gratitude to the many kind friends who came forward so willingly to help us, and worked both hard and long to make our garden party pass off so happily. But all down the ages both men and women have done much for love's sake, and ever will, and desire nothing more at the end of life's journey, than to meet their Divine Master's approving smile. Meanwhile—

Go labour on, spend and be spent, Thy joy to do the Master's will.

THE ISLE OF RETRIBUTION

EDISON MARSHALL

ILLUSTRATED BY R.W. SATTERTFIELD

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

Ned Cornet, his fiancée, Lenore, and Bess, a seamstress, are survivors of a shipwreck. They land on an island inhabited only by a man named Doomsdorf and his Indian wife. Doomsdorf tells them he has named the island "Hell," and warns Ned and the girls that he is master of the island and that they must be his willing slaves.

Ned defies Doomsdorf and the two fight. Ned, however, is no match for the big man's strength and is badly beaten. Second in command is the squaw, and she proves herself a faithful watchdog for her master.

Bess is the stronger of the two girls. She makes up her mind to be ready for any opportunity to escape. Lenore seems helpless to cope with the situation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"But I really must get down to essentials. It's so long since I've talked to the outside world that I can't help being garrulous. To begin with—I came here some years ago, not entirely by my own choice. Of course, not even the devil comes to such a hell as this by his own choice. There's a fellow named Doomsdorf, the owner of the island, who looks at you with the horrified gaze with which his hearers regarded him. A startling change had come over him when he spoke again. His eyes looked red as a weasel's in the shadowed room; the tones of his voice were more subdued, yet throbbing with passion.

"I remember gray walls, long ago, in Siberia," he went on slowly and gravely. "I was not much more than a boy, a student at a great university—and then there were gray walls in a gray, snow-swept land, and gray cells with barred doors, and men standing ever on watch with loaded rifles, and thousands of human cattle in prison garb. It was almost straight west of here, far beyond Bering Sea; and sometimes inspectors would come, stylish people like yourselves, except that they were bearded men of Petrograd, and look at us through the bars as at animals in a zoo, but they never interfered with the way things were run! I was an enemy of society, they said—so I became an enemy of society in reality. Right then I learned a hate for society and a desire to burn out the heart of such weak things as you!"

He turned to them, snarling like a beast.

"One day the chance came to escape. While more cowardly men would have hesitated, I pushed through and out.

WRIGLEY'S

ISSUE No. 31—'29

On the way I learned a little lesson—that none of the larger creatures of the wild die as easily as men. I found out that there is nothing more to killing a man than that is in your way than killing a caribou I want to eat. I didn't feel any worse about it afterward.

"I had to come across here. I couldn't forever escape the hue and cry that was raised. Ultimately I landed on this island—with Sirdy and a few steel traps.

"In this climate we can trap almost the whole year round. We can start putting them out in a few days more—keep them out clear till June. Every year a ship—the Intrepid, that you've likely heard of—touches here to buy my furs—just one trip a year—and it leaves here supplies of all kinds in exchange. But don't take hope from that. Hope is one thing you want to get out of your systems. The captain of the Intrepid and the Japanese crew are the only human beings that know I live here, except yourself—that know there's a human occupant on this island. On their yearly visit I'll see to it that none of them get a sight of you.

"Once you're used to working all day on a farm, you'll find it isn't so hard as it seems."

"Glad to see you're bucking up," he commented.

going to be that way from now on. I'm going to be the armed master. The next few days you're going to spend building yourselves a shack and cutting winter fuel. Then each of you will have a trap line—a good stiff one, too. Every day you'll go out and follow your line of traps—baiting, skinning and fleshing, drying the skins when you get to the cabins. You'll know what it really is to be cold, then; you'll know what work means, too. With you three I expect to triple my usual season's catch, building up three times as fast the fortune I need.

"All my life I've looked forward to a chance to give society the same kind of treatment it gave me—and when that fortune is large enough to work with there will be a new dynasty arise in Russia.

"When I said to abandon hope I meant it. You have no boat, and I'll give you no chance to make one. The distance is too great across the ice ever to make it through; besides, you won't be given a chance to try.

"Even if your doting fathers should send out a search party, they will overlook this little island. It was just a freak of the current that you landed here—I don't see yet why you weren't blown to Tzar Island, immediately east of here. When they find you aren't there, and pick up any other lifeboats from your ship that in all probability landed there, they'll be glad enough to turn around and go back. Especially if they see your lifeboat floating bottom upward in the water!"

He paused, scanning their pale, drawn faces. He turned to Ned first, but the latter was too immersed in his own despair ever to return his stare. Lenore didn't raise her golden head to meet his eyes. But before his gaze ever got to her, Bess was on her feet.

"Don't be too sure of yourself," she cautioned quickly. He looked with sudden amazement into her kindling eyes. "Men like you have gone in the face of society before. You're not so far up here that the arm of the law can't reach you."

The blond man smiled into her earnest face. "Go on, my dear," he urged. "It's got you once, and it'll get you again. And I warn you that if you put one indignity on us, do one thing you've said—you'll pay for it in the end—just as you'll pay for that fiendish crime that you committed today."

As her eyes met his, straight and unfaltering, the expressive of contemptuous amazement died in his face. Presently his interest seemed to quicken. It was as if he had seen her for the first time, searching eyes resting first on hers, then on her lips, dropping down over her athletic form, and again into her eye. He seemed lost in sinister speculations.

CHAPTER XVI.

Doomsdorf had seemingly achieved his purpose, and his prisoners lay crushed in his hands. A fear infinitely worse than that of toil or hardship had evidently killed the fighting spirit in Bess; Lenore had been broken by Doomsdorf's first words. And now all the structure of Ned's life had seemingly toppled about him.

For in this moment of unspeakable remorse, he found he could blame no one but himself for the disaster. Every year men traversed these desolate waters to buy furs from the Indians; he had been in a staunch boat, and with a little care, a little foresight, the journey could have been made in perfect safety. It was a man's venture, surely; but he could have carried through if he had met it like a man instead of a weakling.

In spite of his own despair, his own bitter hopelessness, he must do what he could to keep hope alive in Lenore and Bess. It was the only chance he had to pay, even in the most pitiful, slight degree for what he had done to them. He must always try to make their lot easier, doing their work when he could, maintaining an attitude of cheer, living the lie of hope when hope seemed dead in his breast.

And that is what, when Doomsdorf looked at the girl, his eyes more some vast, his lips in a firm, stronger steady.

"Glad to see you're bucking up," he commented lightly. Ned turned soberly. "I am bucking up," he answered. "I see now that you've gone into something you can't get away with. Miss Gilbert was right; in the end you'll find yourself laid out by the heels."

"You think so, eh?" Doomsdorf yawned and stretched his arms. "Just try something—that's all. And since you're feeling so good, I don't see why you shouldn't get to work. You can still put in a fairly good morning. And you"—he turned, with a catlike swiftness that marked so many of his movements toward Bess—"what's your name?"

Bess, in her misery, looked at him with dread. "Bess Gilbert," she answered quietly.

"Bess it will be. Lenore, I think, call the 'her'—and Ned. Good thing to know your first names, since we've got an uncertain number of years before us. Well, I suggest that all three of you go out and see what you can do about wood. You'll have to cut some and split it. I've been lazy about laying in a winter store."

Much to his amazement, Ned stood erect, pulled down his cap over his brown curls, and buttoned his coat. "I'll see what we can do," he answered straightforwardly. "I have, though, one thing to ask."

"What is it?"

"That you let the two girls take it easy today—and get warmed through. If you sent them out now, weakened as they are, it might very easily mean pneumonia and death. It's to your interest to keep them alive."

"It's to my interest, surely—but don't rely on that to the extent of showing too much independence. The human body can stand a lot before it gives up the ghost. The human voice can do a lot of screaming. I know, because I've seen. I don't mind running a little risk with human life to get my way, and I know several things, short of actual killing, that go toward enforcing obedience and quelling mutiny."

Lenore, staring wildly at him, caught her breath in a sob. "You don't mean—"

Doomsdorf did not look at her. He still smiled down at Ned. "You've never felt a knot, have you, on the naked back?" he asked sweetly. "I found out what they were like in Siberia, and with the hope of showing some one else, I took one out—in my boot. It's half-killed many a man—but I only know one man that it's completely killed. He was a guard—and I found out just how many blows it takes." The man yawned again. "But your request is granted—so far as Lenore is concerned. You can leave her here for me to entertain. Bess has spirit enough to work."

Tasty Recipes

ALMOND CAKE.

Ingredients—6 oz. of ground sweet almonds, ½ oz. of pounder bitter almonds, 6 oz. of castor sugar, 3 oz. of butter, 1 lb. of flour, 4 eggs, essence of lemon. Method—Break the eggs into a clean bowl, add the sugar, previously warmed, and beat the mixture well together with a wire egg whisk until it is as thick as cream. Add the butter (melted), mix in the almonds, flour (sifted), and essence of lemon with a spoon. Grease a plain mould, fill it with the mixture, and bake in a steady oven. It will require from 1½ to 2 hours to bake, and great care must be taken to prevent the mixture burning. As a precaution, it is advisable to lay 3 or 4 thicknesses of newspaper under the mould, and wrap the same round the sides, fixing the paper in place with a piece of twine. Time—About 2 to 2½ hours. Sufficient for 1½ to 2 dozen small cakes.

APRICOT MOULD.

Ingredients—2 oz. of milk, 2 oz. of apricot jam, ½ gill of apricot pulp, and ½ gill of cream. Method—Bring the milk to boiling point, sprinkle in the ground rice, and simmer for about 10 minutes. Dilute the jam or pulp with a tablespoonful of hot water and press it through a sieve or strainer into the stewpan. Add the sugar, and when well mixed pour the preparation into a wetted border mould. Let it stand until set, then turn out, and pile the stiffly-whipped sweetened cream in the centre. Time—From 25 to 30 minutes. Sufficient for 5 or 6 persons.

BEANS, FRENCH OR KIDNEY, BOILED.

Ingredients—French beans, salt, pepper, a small piece of soda. Method—Cut off the heads, tails and a thin strip on each side of the beans, so as to remove the string. Cut the beans in a slanting direction into slips and, as they are cut, drop them into cold water. Have ready a saucepan of boiling water, and 1 heaped teaspoonful of salt to each quart of water, and a small piece of soda if the beans are old. Put in the beans, keep the saucepan uncovered, and boil briskly for about 15 to 25 minutes, according to age. Drain well, sprinkle with pepper, then serve. Time—To boil the beans, about 15 to 25 minutes. Seasonable from July to October.

MACARONI CHEESE.

Ingredients—4 oz. of macaroni, 2 oz. of grated cheese, 1 oz. of butter, ½ oz. of flour, ½ pint of milk, ½ a teaspoonful of made mustard, salt and pepper to taste, brown bread crumbs. Method—Break the macaroni into small pieces, put them into slightly-salted rapidly boiling water, boil until tender, and drain well. Melt the butter in a stewpan, stir in the flour, add the milk, and boil well, stirring continuously. Now add the macaroni, cheese, mustard, a liberal seasoning of salt and pepper, and mix all well together. Have ready a well-greased fireproof dish, turn the mixture into it, sprinkle the surface with brown bread crumbs and grated cheese, place a few small pieces of butter on the top, and bake in a quick oven until nicely browned. If preferred, the mixture may be cooked in scallop shells or ramakin cases. Time—About ¾ of an hour. Sufficient for 1 dish.

YORKSHIRE GINGER CAKE.

Ingredients—1 large or 2 small eggs, ¼ pint of cream or less of milk, ¼ lb. of butter, ¼ lb. of castor sugar, 1¼ oz. of ground ginger, 1 lb. of flour, salt. Method—Whisk the egg thoroughly, add the cream, and beat these together. Put the mixture into a saucepan, stirring till warm; add the butter, sugar, and ginger, carefully stirring over a very moderate fire. When the butter has melted, stir in the flour, adding salt, and make into a paste (the flour must be fine). Roll out the paste and cut it out with a plain round paste cutter on to greased flat tins, and bake in a moderate oven. Time—About ¾ of an hour. Sufficient for 1½ to 2 dozen small cakes.

Drownings Mount To First Place

Auto Accidents Claim Only Six Deaths While the Water Accounts for Eleven Over the Week-end

Fatal End of Heat Wave

With the heat wave spreading throughout the province and crowds seeking relief at bathing beaches, waters of Ontario claimed eleven lives during the week-end.

The dead are:

Christina Eaton, aged eight, Toronto, drowned at Lounge river.

Eugene T. Malloux, 47, Windsor, drowned at Reaume Park.

Lucy Rimmel, aged 18, drowned in same fatality.

Henry Reophalle, aged 19, North Bay, drowned near Sudbury.

Malcolm Munroe, aged seven, Munroe Mills, drowned near Ottawa.

Earl Brown, aged 27, Barrie failed to re-appear after dive off dock.

Grace Morris, aged 17, swept off pier at Port Stanley, by heavy sea.

Otto Hanson, aged 30, Point Edward, drowned in St. Clair river.

Jean Louis Gauthier, aged 17, Hull, victim of undertow.

Denis Kelly, aged 38, Gatineau Mills, victim of undertow.

Leonard Hunt, aged eight, drowned in Scugog river.

The majority of the fatalities occurred at popular bathing beaches and many tales of attempted rescue accompanied the reports of tragedy.

None was more valiant than the struggle against death carried on at Port Stanley, when two youths fought a heavy undertow to rescue young Grace Morris of Hamilton.

The girl was finally brought to shore, but succumbed shortly afterwards.

Six More Deaths

The disastrous crash of two trucks on the highway near Ridgeway, which accounted for the lives of four, and two fatalities near Toronto, brought the toll of road fatalities up to six as reported last night, while a slip on the stair of her home claimed the life of Mrs. Annie Rawn, 21 Adams avenue, Toronto.

John Wright, Blenheim, foreman of a construction gang and employee of the Storm Construction company, met death with three members of his gang when the truck on which they were riding, was struck by a motor vehicle. Six others in the truck escaped serious injury by a hair's breadth.

Mrs. Henry Clark, Mount Dennis, was struck down and killed by a passing auto. Percy McGinnis, 18 Ashbury avenue, Toronto was fatally injured when his motorcycle bounded off the roadway.

Exciting Time On Small Steamer

Fire Looks Serious But Captain Beaches Vessel and All Are Safe

Lindsay, July 28.—Fire threatened the lives of 60 passengers and the crew of the steamer Lintonia on Sturgeon Lake yesterday afternoon. On her regular run from Sturgeon Point to Lindsay flames were discovered on the deck, and a life boat was burning. Her captain ran into the shore line near Snug harbor and a hurry call for help was sent to Sturgeon point. Several yachts responded and all passengers were unloaded without panic and taken to Lindsay.

Another call sent to Fenelon falls was answered by the government steamer Bessie Butler, who pulled the Lintonia out of the stumps where she was stranded. The fire was put out without serious damage, but the steamer missed her regular Saturday evening trip. The Lintonia is a small passenger boat running between Lindsay and resorts on Sturgeon lake.

Mr. Bennett and the British Preference

Manitoba Free Press (Lib.): It is well that Mr. Bennett has thus declared himself, in language that is easily understandable. His idea is to bar out all importations of goods of British origin with the exception of a few things, that we cannot produce ourselves — tropical fruits from Australia, unset diamonds from South Africa, tea from India, block tin from Great Britain. These are about the only items that appear to emerge from a study of Canadian imports that would be safe from Mr. Bennett's onslaught. This, we cannot but think, would be an old way to improve Empire trade.

It is easy to say how we love new friends, and what we think of them, but words can never trace out all the fibres that knit us to the old.—George Elliot.

Tacoma-Japan Plane Wrecked in Take-off

Tacoma, Wash., July 28.—The monoplane City of Tacoma was wrecked this morning at Tacoma Field when Lieut. Harold Bromley started on his scheduled non-stop flight to Tokio. Pilot Bromley, who is a native of Victoria, B.C., was not injured.

Disaster ended the flight. The plane travelled about 250 feet down the runway. It swerved, and turned over on its right wing.

Bromley leaped from the cockpit, confused but unhurt. He explained later that he had been blinded by spray from his capacity filled gasoline tanks.

The plane hurtled off the ramp at the beginning of the runway at 6.06 o'clock at a good speed, but seemed to slacken its pace just as Bromley was starting to lift the tail of the ship off the ground. Less than a minute from the start of the plane ploughed into the soft soil at the left of the edge of the oiled runway.

That swerve caused the wreck. The right wheel of the landing gear crumpled and the ship nosed into the ground, demolishing the right half of the fuselage, making a twisted mass of plywood and steel of what had been a $25,000 airplane.

Aviators who saw the accident marvelled that the plane did not catch fire. Those who first reached the wreck found Bromley standing on the ground clear of the wreck. "I'm not hurt," were his first words.

Four Days, 18 Hours, 17 Minutes from Cherbourg to Ambrose Lightship

New York—Germany wrested the trans-Atlantic speed supremacy from Great Britain when her newest greyhound of the sea, the liner Bremen completed the crossing from Cherbourg, France, to Ambrose lightship at 3.02 p.m. e.d.t.

The North German Lloyd's giant passenger vessel, which sailed from Cherbourg at 12.45 a.m. Thursday (8.45 p.m. Wednesday e.d.t.) set a new trans-oceanic mark of 4 days, 18 hours, 17 minutes. The previous record, 5 days, 2 hours, 34 minutes, was made by the Cunarder Mauretania and had stood unchallenged for a year.

At noon the passengers were informed the vessel was churning the sea at the phenomenal rate of 29 1/2 knots and had set a new one-day record of 713 knots in the previous 24 hours.

This was 8 knots more than the 705 knots record set by the Bremen during the 24 hours before, and the news created the wildest enthusiasm among the passengers.

BRINGING THE OCEAN STILL CLOSER TO WINKER, FOR LEAF FIELDS

The new Welland canal is now 95 per cent. completed, and it is expected that August, 1930, will witness the first large freighter navigating the famous twin-flight locks from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario. The photographs here show: (1) 82-foot gates on western No. 5 twin-flight locks. Inner left gate is one which figured in the fatal Welland canal gate crash. From top of gates to floor of canal is 130 1/2 feet—23 feet less than height of Horseshoe Falls. (2) Alexander J. Grant, chief engineer in charge of construction, with Col. A. E. Dubac, chief engineer, department of railways and canals, inspecting Lock 7. (3) a drilling barge, and (4) assistant engineer A. W. L. Butler.

Mr. Snowden's Proposals

Vancouver Province (Ind. Cons.): Mr. Snowden accompanies his cold blast against Imperial Preference with a warm invitation to a new Imperial economic conference. Doubtless the new British Government is perfectly sincere in its reiterated aspiration towards the development of trade within the Empire. But it is clear that the business is going to be anything but plain sailing, and it is also clear that the change of Governments in Britain is going to mean further perplexities for our own Mr. King and our own Mr. Bennett.

NOTHING IMPOSSIBLE

It is idleness that creates impossibilities; and where men care not to do a thing, they shelter themselves under a persuasion that it cannot be done. The shortest and the surest way to prove a work possible, is strenuously to set about it, and no wonder if that proves it possible that for the most part makes it so.

16 Meet Death In Premature Blast On British Cruiser

Eight Inch Gun Turret Blown Away During Battle Practice.—Disaster May Yet Claim More Lives Among Dozen Badly Injured

Valetta, Malta, July 27.—The British admiralty has taken such a serious view of yesterday's latest disaster, the explosion in a gun turret on the cruiser Devonshire, that the dreadnaught Queen Elizabeth with the commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean fleet aboard today was steaming at full speed to Volo, Greece, to hold an immediate inquiry.

The death of another marine during the night brought the number of fatalities up to 16, with nine injured. The loss of the submarine H-47 with 23 lives on July 9, quickly followed by an explosion aboard the submarine X-1 and the bursting of an air bomb on the cruiser Vindictive which killed one and injured two, together with yesterday's disaster, have made this month the blackest in many years in the British navy.

Valetta, Malta, July 27.—A terrific explosion blew away an eight-inch gun turret on the British cruiser Devonshire during battle practice off the Greek Island of Skiathos late yesterday and killed 15 marines. Nine others were seriously injured.

The Devonshire made full speed for Volo, about 100 miles north of Athens on the east coast of Greece, to transfer the wounded to the hospital ship Maine.

The warship, which cost more than $6,250,000, was the latest London class cruiser to join the Mediterranean fleet. She carries eight eight-inch guns, four four-inch guns, four three-pounders and four two-pounders. Commissioned on March 19, 1929, her displacement is 14,000.

An official inquiry into the explosion was ordered to start here today.

PREMATURE EXPLOSION.

London, July 27.—A Reuters dispatch from Volo, Greece, today says that the disaster on the cruiser Devonshire was due to premature explosion of a shell. Funeral services for the 16 victims are to be held today.

Rear Admiral W. A. H. Kelly sailed last night for the scene of the explosion to open an inquiry.

Mr. Clayton McKay's house was destroyed by fire on Monday last. We understand most of the contents were saved. No further particulars at hand.

Mr. Ed Harrison and family, of Islington, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harrison.

OBITUARY

MRS. WM. ADAIR

Mrs. Wm. F. Adair, Norland, Ontario, passed away on Sunday, July 14th, from heart trouble, following a severe attack of influenza.

Mrs. Adair, formerly Annie E. Pearson, was born at Oakwood in 1855, and came to Norland when ten years old. In 1879 she was married to William F. Adair, who predeceased her five years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss three children: Mrs. A. E. Swain, of Valentia, Mrs. James LeCraw and Mrs. A. C. Adair, of Norland, and ten grandchildren. Also three brothers, I. J. Pearson, of Haliburton, W. C. Pearson, Norland, and A. C. Pearson, Kaslo, B.C. She was an active member of the United Church, loved and respected by all who knew her.

The funeral services, conducted by the Rev. J. A. McDonald, were held at the home of Mr. J. A. LeCraw. Interment took place in Pine Grove Cemetery, Norland.

Harburn Herald

Having is the order of the day. The crop is fair and the weather ideal for saving it.

Mr. and Mrs. Holte and daughter, Phyllis, of Lea Park, Alberta, are visiting at Mrs. John Bowen's.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Robinson, of Inglehart, spent a few days at Mr. J. Robert's recently. They motored from Inglehart to Harburn in one day. Who says the roads are bad.

We hear that Mr. and Mrs. P. Anderson are soon to move to their new home near the village. They will be greatly missed by their many old friends here.

Miss M. V. Roberts, of Smooth Rock Falls, is spending her holidays under the parental roof.

Mrs. M. Irwin, of Lindsay, spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. M. Curry.

Mrs. J. S. McDougal, of Toronto, returned home after a ten days' visit with her mother. She was formerly Miss Hazel Curry. Her many friends gathered on Wednesday evening and gave her a kitchen shower. A very pleasant evening was spent with music and dancing. Lunch was served, and everyone enjoyed a good time. We all join in wishing the young couple a long and happy married life.

Messrs. Alvin and Jack Roberts, of Toronto, are spending a few days with their parents here.

Several tourist parties are enjoying the fishing at Crooked Lake.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of a husband and father, Robert J. Drury, who departed this life August 1928

As we loved him so we miss him,
In our memory he is dear,
Loved, remembered, thought of always,
Bringing many a silent tear.

He bade no one a last farewell,
He said good-bye to none.
The Heavenly gates were opened wide,
A loving voice said "Come".

Sleep on dear father your cares are ended,
Rest in peace, your work is done.
You are gone where those who loved you
Will meet you one by one.

[Sadly missed by wife and family]

GALVANIZED RIB-ROLL

PROTECTS AGAINST LIGHTNING AND FIRE
Costly fires caused by flying embers and lightning are banishing wooden roofs in favor of metal. Rib-Roll Roofing has a dozen features found in no other roofing. Properly grounded according to the fire marshal's instructions it defies lightning; it stands up against every weather and climatic condition. Handsome, easy to lay on new roofs or over old ones. Secure for a lifetime. Sheets fit weathertight; there are seven ribs to nail into, giving greater security than in any other roofing. Ideal for Barns, Sheds, Summer Cottages.

Put it on with PRESTON LED-HED NAILS
The only nails to use with metal roofing. The lead on the head perfectly seals the nail hole. Waterproof eliminates clumsy washers. No more "threading". Their ease and speed of handling makes them worth many times their cost. 22¢ per lb. FREE sample gladly sent on request.

PRESTON Ventilation Prevents Spontaneous Combustion
To our knowledge, not a single Preston Ventilated Barn has ever been burned because of spontaneous combustion. Warm, moist air in an improperly ventilated barn produces conditions conducive to spontaneous ignition. Preston Ventilators for the roof, adjustable side-wall windows and spacious doors protect the barn from fire dangers by keeping the air in constant circulation. They are built to keep the elements out. Write for full particulars.

PRESTON STEEL-TRUSS BARN
A stronger barn built with rugged Steel Trusses. Every angle of the structure is braced against wind pressure. The framework is compact, doing away with cumbersome cross-beams. Well-ventilated and well-lighted; the easiest barn to work in. We use your timbers.
Over 1000 Ontario farmers have studied all makes and chosen the Preston Steel-Truss Barn. Their satisfaction is our strongest argument. Get the facts about this better barn. Write today for our big "Book About Barns".

Barn Door Tracks and Hanger
Preston hot-galvanized four-wheel hangers and bird-proof Barn Door Tracks are the best hardware made for heavy barn doors. The hanger is adjustable up and down, and in and out. This makes erection so easy that hundreds of builders will use no other type.

Banff Athletic Centre of Canada

Typical Highland dancers and piper grouped on platform outside the Banff Springs Hotel. Finish of 100 yds. race showing track and grandstand where the Dominion championships meet will be held Labor Day next.

All eyes will be turned to Banff next Labor Day for on that date the 40th annual Dominion track and field championships meet will be held at the beautiful resort in the Rockies. A fast 20-foot quarter mile race track, built up and surfaced like a tennis court will be ready for the meet, the infield is being specially prepared and resown and the grandstand enlarged. The Banff Highland Gathering and Scottish Music Festival will precede and coincide with the championships and it is expected that many of the athletes will be present during the gathering in order to accustom themselves to the new surroundings in which they will compete. Highland pipers and dancers from all parts of Canada will be present at this assembly giving a Scottish flavor to the national championships this year.

TRUTH

I have seldom known any one who deserted Truth in trifles, that could be trusted in matters of importance.—
Paley.

Who is a Doctor?

In your hands we place our social and individual health. You, and you alone may use the hallowed title,
"Doctor of Medicine", and by virtue of that title, heal the sick and preserve the well.

Perhaps the best answer to that question, is this. Imagine, if you can, the condition that would exist if the medical profession were not so recognized. Suppose that any man who had the laudable ambition to heal his fellow-men of their ills—could without any supervision call himself
"Doctor" and begin cutting people up and dosing them with potions of his own concoction. What an epidemic of horrible deaths there would be. How quickly the public's present profound respect for the title "Doctor," would be changed to the deepest distrust!

To become a medical student, one must first pass his honor matricula-tion. That takes five years. After that, he must spend another six years at a recognized medical school.

It is hard to adequately suggest, in a sketchy article of this nature, the vast scope of a modern medical curriculum. The neophyte must learn physics, chemistry, biology, physiology, pharmacology, anatomy, history (involving a understanding of the microscopic structure of the body.)

From these basic studies, all of which, where they touch the human being, deal merely with the normal,
the student then proceeds to pathology, the study of sickness, in its different aspects, pathological chemistry, bacteriology and immunology, medicine and surgery in all their branches, preventive medicine hygiene.

It is still harder for the reader to appreciate the vast historical background, the great wealth and richness of meaning of all of those terms;
of the tremendous accumulation of knowledge that a would-be doctor must painstakingly acquire. And when he has spent six long years acquiring it, it is then customary for him to spend one or more often two years as an interne in a hospital. So that a youth of nineteen who finishes his honor matric and starts to "go through for a doctor" knows that he will be about 28 before he starts earning anything. And even then, it will take him another five years before he begins to earn more than enough for the ordinary necessities of life.

accidentals, to say nothing of amusements.

But in passing through those years of test and trial and hard work, he has become legitimate heir to all the tested medical knowledge that mankind has ever acquired and saved.
The wisdom of long-dead leeches has been poured into him, and he has become greater than any of them—greater by virtue of his greater knowledge, a scientist, able to work by degrees from the known to the unknown.

And for the privileges that society accords the physician it expects, and is almost invariably accorded, a tenfold return. There is no other division of mankind, with the possible exception of clergymen, that gives away, gratis, more of its time, energy and knowledge than do the doctors.

A doctor does an enormous amount of work for which he is not paid.
Common humanity demands that he answer any serious call made upon him, at any hour of the day or night, even if he knows that the patient cannot pay. In a way this is unjust.
No one expects the keeper of a grocery store to give away his goods, even though there may be people starving for lack of them. Yet a doctor is expected to do just that—and in most cases he does.

In making this concession to the race generally, the doctor becomes the greatest giver of charity in the community. "Noblesse oblige" is to him no idle elegant phrase and it is indisputable that the profession bears, collectively, a great burden of healing the indigent, which belongs rightly to the state, just as the feeding of the starving is becoming recognized as a state responsibility.

And so, within the limitations of this short article, I have endeavored to establish the following facts: that every doctor belongs to a profession whose object above all other things is to heal the sick and to prevent sickness; a profession that is constantly improving itself, a profession that has produced men like Koch, Jenner, and Pasteur, whose discoveries have saved the lives of hundreds of thousands, and will save unborn hundreds or millions, a profession whose pride is in efficiency, and whose record is one of service that has been to a larger degree unselfish than that of any other mundane calling.

HOME

Something like home that is not home is to be desired, it is found in the house of a friend.—Sir W. Temple.

Holidays

like an arrow, falling with bow wings in order to seize the heron, who, at the very last moment, flung himself away. Thereupon, falling again in a terrible "stoop," she used the increasing speed for a sudden upward curve, in the path of the wind, which carried her windward of the quarry and gave her a new position, higher and of greater advantage for her attack.

Faiz cried out in delight, "Praise
be to the Lord, my falcon is swooping down!" and from the old Arabic poem he recited: "She catches the prey in her talons as in a net!"
With her feet held close to her body, she rushed down, straight and steady, and then with a quick, nearly unnoticeable spread of her wings, swooped again—stopped and swooped once more—on to the prey. Rolling and falling, once stopping for a moment, because the big heron was fighting for his life in the blue ocean of the air, came the ball of scuffling birds. Feathers, torn loose, fluttered to the ground. Then I saw that the falcon had been able to separate herself, not without dealing the final deadly blow. Thereafter she sailed away in the wind and, as the quarry bounced to the desert ground, gave herself a satisfied swing and with a swoop brought herself close to us.

Two of the jirwa, or female greyhounds, were now sent after the prize, which they dragged in. A rider met them half-way and cut off the head of the big bird.
Finally we sighted a herd of gazel-
es. New life came into the whole party. We spread out over a long line of attack, more or less in a half-circle. We came very close to some of the gazelles, but they managed to break suddenly to the side.

The sport lasted for at least an hour. Some of our mares became exhausted and were kept back. Swiftly the rest of us kept on moving, assisted by the greyhounds. I slowed my mare down when I noticed that four Bedouins, including the prince, with twitching hands were again loosing the leather hoods and foot-leashes and straps of their hunting-birds.

Buzzing and crying, the birds sailed away the moment they were set free and in an almost incredibly short time were gliding down, close to the ground, on the poor, unlucky gazelles,
which, with dashes and side jumps, with newly increased speed and with despairing strength, tried to shake off the gruesome murderers from their bleeding necks and heads. The ob-perpetual days, and suffer blase to do active work themselves.

evil company, but I will be careful not to keep with evil company. I would willingly sort myself fifth such will rather leave him ill than he shall make me worse.

Watch your growing children

WATCH the health of your growing children! See that they have the health and energy necessary for their school work and play. For growing children—particularly girls—a rich supply of red blood is essential. Languor, nervousness, depression, fickle appetite or pallor indicate anaemia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich the blood, prevent anaemia and build healthy bone and tissues. Thousands of mothers have proved this. "My twelve-year-old girl," writes Mrs. Robert Devitt of Brougham, Ontario, "became so pale, so ill and nervous that we had to take her out of school. I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for her and she gained in weight and strength. She is now the picture of health."

The Foamy Omelet

The omelet has always been more or less of a favorite egg dish, but it remained a simple, plain affair, used rather for family meals, than for guests, until some clever cook concocted the foamy omelet.

The housewife who is acquainted with this omelet and familiar with its many variations, finds herself not at all dismayed when unexpected guests drop in at the last minute before lunch. A foamy omelet solves her problem. Not only is it a very delicious dish, but an especially attractive one as well. The directions are as follows.

Foamy Omelet

Four eggs; 1 teaspoonful of salt; pepper; 1 cupful of medium cream sauce.

Cream Sauce

Two tablespoonfuls of butter; 2 tablespoonfuls of flour; 1 cupful of milk; ½ teaspoonful of salt; pepper.

Melt in a frying pan ½ tablespoonful of butter and pour in the mixture. Cook over a low fire, covered; uncover it after two minutes; when well puffed, with a light brown lower crust, finish it in a slow oven until to the firm touch. Crease the omelet at right angle to the handle of pan, fold over; invert hot platter over the top and turn out.

It may be served plain, simply as an addition to a menu; but it lends itself to all sorts of combinations and may thus be made to suffice as the main part of the meal. Creamed chicken, tuna, dried beef (in fact, any kind of meat) may be placed between the folds. Creamed mushrooms, creamed peas, creamed asparagus, tomato sauce, chili—all are splendid combinations. Each one will be improved, both in taste and in appearance if a garnishing of pimento strips is added. Those who have a "sweet tooth" may like to sweeten the mixture before cooking, and serve plain, garnished with a tart jelly or conserve.

There really seems to be no end to the things an interested cook can do to this very adaptable dish.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

In Summer When Childhood Ailments Are Most Dangerous.

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer. In most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets relieve these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child they will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed to be absolutely harmless even to the new-born babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Largest Sea Locks, Costing $7,600,000, Will Be Opened Near Amsterdam

Amsterdam.—The world's largest existing sea locks at Ymuiden, the sea harbor of Amsterdam, will be completed next September, enabling even the largest ships, such for instance as the S. S. Leviathan, to reach Amsterdam. A gigantic work, involving a cost of 19,000,000 florins ($7,600,000) and covering six years, will have been accomplished.

Amsterdam is connected with the sea by the North Sea Canal, which is terminated near the coast of Ymuiden, by a set of locks. The oldest of these locks was opened for traffic in November, 1876, simultaneously with the canal itself. After some years it was realized that these locks were too small for the increasing traffic, and a new and larger lock was opened in 1896.

In 1917, the act for construction of a new sea lock at Ymuiden was passed, in 1919 excavations began, and now the lock is about to be opened for traffic. The dimensions are about 1312 by 164 by 50 feet, surpassing those of the Panama Canal and of the

Professor Tells of Discoveries in Palaces of Assyrian Kings

Chicago.—University of Chicago scientists, excavating in the Tigris river area have discovered the palaces of Sennacherib and Sargon II., who as successive Assyrian kings, conquered Jerusalem 700 years before Christ, it was announced today by Prof. Edward Chiera, who has returned from Iraq.

Examples of Assyrian arts, painting, sculpture and architecture, regarded by officials of the university's Oriental institute as priceless, were recovered by the expedition, altogether 250 tons of material was collected and 125 tons are en route to the university, British officials receiving half of the find.

Included in the collection is a massive stone bull which guarded the gates of Sennacherib's palace. The piece measures 17 by 20 feet and weighs 20 tons.

Prof. Chiera believes the site of the excavations covers several Assyrian villages and work on the main palace and grounds alone will require perhaps several years.

"Jacques Cartier Bridge?"

Le Devoir (Ind.): It would be appropriate, on the eve of the fourth centenary of the discovery of the St. Lawrence River by Jacques Cartier to give the bridge the name of that famous St. Malo navigator. The ceremony of placing the last girder took place last week in the presence of invited guests, who were almost all English-speaking, although the construction of the bridge is far from being an exclusively English enterprise and the Harbour Commission ought to be predominantly French, if it represented the ethnic formation of the population. If the bridge does not receive a name worthy of our French-Canadian history, the fault will be with an unproportionate and unintelligent population who do not know how to make use of their predominant strength.

Speeding up Freight Service

The recent installation of Mack Tractors and Lapeer Trailers by the Dominion Transport Company Limited, for the transfer of L.C. freight between the Canadian Pacific Place Viger freight sheds and their outlying terminals in this city, was demonstrated before E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President, and other executives of the railway outside the Windsor Street Station.

Mr. Beatty was specially interested in the mechanism by which the trailer is connected up with the tractor. This is done by the simple operation of backing the tractor slowly into the trailer. Uncoupling is actuated from the tractor by the simple moving of a lever. The President had these operations performed several times and expressed his appreciation of their simplicity.

Coupling and uncoupling of the trailer is operated by means of a mechanism known as a fifth wheel which is bolted to the tractor frame and upon which the front end of the trailer rides, interlocks itself mechanically with the trailer through the use of railroad type double locking jaw couplers. Brakes of both the tractor and trailer are applied individually and separately by the driver and are at all times under his control. Were it possible for a trailer to become disconnected from a tractor at any time when in motion, the brakes of the former are automatically applied bringing it almost immediately to a stop.

Through the use of a "Dolly" which consists of a fifth wheel mounted on a pair of road wheels, two or more attendant trailers may be attached to one tractor thereby forming a tractor train and by so doing much increasing the total load capacity. With the addition of the extra trailer wheels the total weight of the vehicle and load is divided over a greater road surface tire area, thus overcoming the deteriorating effect of heavily loaded trucks on the highways and city streets.

The capacity of the trailers used is 10,000 to 15,000 pounds with an inside dimension of approximately 16 feet long, 6 1/2 feet wide and 7 feet high. The tractor is of the internationally known Mack type and its draw-bar pull is 12 to 15,000 lbs. of anything that will be required of it, but was deemed advisable to use in view of the heavy road conditions prevailing in Montreal during the winter months.

While the tractor is of standard Mack design, only the chassis is so in the case of the trailer, the body being built and finished in the Transport company's plant in Montreal. The body is of oak throughout with a sheet metal covering and the whole equipment is highly finished in dark blue with red wheels and undergear, the standard colors of the company, making a very handsome appearance. The centre side panels or sliding doors of the trailer as well as the rear doors and front panel are decorated with the Maple Leaf and Beaver, insignia of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The doors of the tractor bear the same crest. The Dominion Transport Company have at present nine trailers in operation and will increase this number to twelve in the next few weeks. Similar automotive equipment has been ordered for use in Toronto by the company.

Mack Tractors and Lapeer trailers represent the latest and most efficient method of handling freight. It consists of spotting one or more trailers at strategic points where freight is to be picked up. When the trailer is loaded the tractor calls for each in turn, taking them to their respective destinations known as the "Shut" system.

The centre side panels or sliding doors of the trailer as well as the rear doors and front panel are decorated with the Maple Leaf and Beaver, insignia of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The doors of the tractor bear the same crest. The Dominion Transport Company have at present nine trailers in operation and will increase this number to twelve in the next few weeks. Similar automotive equipment has been ordered for use in Toronto by the company.

Mack Tractors and Lapeer trailers represent the latest and most efficient method of handling freight. It consists of spotting one or more trailers at strategic points where freight is to be picked up. When the trailer is loaded the tractor calls for each in turn, taking them to their respective destinations known as the "Shut" system.

This new nine-storey hotel, occupying the ground space of an entire city block, was taken over from the contractors two weeks before its opening on June 1, by the Canadian Pacific Railway. It is the new Chateau Lake Louise, built last winter at a cost of two million dollars on the banks of the famous Lake Louise, 6,500 feet up in the Canadian Rockies.

To equip this new hotel and stock it with food for guest occupancy on June 1, 800 beds, 390 bureaus, 780 chairs, 390 pieces of upholstery, 390 desks for rooms, with sheets and pillow cases, box bed springs and other equipment to match, had to be transported three and a half miles up a narrow-gauge mountain railway. The perishable food, which had to be stocked in the hotel the day before opening, included 11,000 pounds of turkey, 8,000 pounds of roasting fowl, 18 whole lamb, 12 whole hogs, 1,000 pounds of new cabbage, 40 cases of grape fruit, and 20 cases of fresh spinach. Approximately 7,000 eggs had to be rushed from the Canadian Pacific supply farms at Strathmore, Alberta, and placed in refrigerators.

Of the other foodstuffs, five tons of potatoes, 300 sacks of flour, 20 tons of sugar, 3,000 pounds of butter, one ton of tea and a thousand pounds of fresh coffee had to be placed in the larders.

All told, a special train of eight cars, carrying 350 tons of foodstuffs, was required to open this remarkable edifice. And all of this had to be rushed in at the last moment, for at the opening banquet the new dining rooms were almost full.

A staff of 425 men and women, including three managers, had to be on hand a week before its opening. These employees have a building to themselves equipped with rooms with bath, hot and cold running water, a rotunda and a ballroom.

The new Chateau Lake Louise has 400 rooms with bath, all outside rooms, 210 of them with southern exposure facing the famous lake. There are telegraph and cable offices in the rotunda, and each bed-room contains a phone which can be connected with long distance.

A resident doctor and trained nurse will have offices in the building to look after the health of its guests; and a special dining room has been built for the maids, nurses and younger children of the guests.

Chateau Lake Louise is now said to be the largest and most modern equipped chateau in the world.
